Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Saturday 12 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Fine, dry and warm or very warm for most.

Today:
Fine and dry with plenty of sunshine for many area. A few showers likely in the far north early in the day and then turning cloudier for parts of Northern Ireland and west Scotland later.

Tonight:
Cloudy in the northwest with a little light rain and drizzle, perhaps some heavier bursts in far northwest later in the night. Elsewhere good clear spells and staying dry.

Sunday:
Staying cloudy for west and north Scotland with some mostly light rain here. Otherwise good sunshine, particularly in south and east and very warm, perhaps hot for some.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Rain affecting the northwest at times, otherwise most places fine and dry. Risk of thunderstorms in the south late Wednesday. Hot in the southeast, temperatures near normal or warm elsewhere.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.